USA Students Receive the Gospel

Ed and Debbie Neimann minister in our OAC Western Pennsylvania area and find the cold winter months challenging, at times, for conducting public open-air evangelism. However, God is always at work, and it never ceases to amaze them how, even in such adverse circumstances, God is in control and will draw people into their meeting locations to hear the Gospel. Ed had a great time sharing Christ with a man one day in 10 degree weather on the campus of Penn State University. At another time, over at Slippery Rock University, Ed was trying to prepare a message on the sketchboard, but students gathered around before he could complete his pre-sketch asking many questions about spiritual matters. Ed sensed that God was doing something special that day, and so without using the board to present the Gospel, he spent all his time talking with the students about what he was trying to paint! They all listened intently, and one of the students videoed the entire Gospel presentation. One student named Dan stayed after everyone else left until Ed had answered all his questions. The time ended with Dan wanting the salvation of Christ which Ed was talking about! God is in control, and we thank the Lord for staff, like Ed, who are sensitive to His leading.

Paraguay Students Receive the Gospel

OAC Paraguay director, Felipe Diaz, shares that over 90,000 students heard the Gospel, and many gave their lives to Jesus last year. This was such an encouragement to Felipe and his team that they are eager to see what God will do this year. Their new Family Center church, which Felipe and his wife, Fatima, founded, now runs a sports ministry which has grown very fast. Many teenagers and young people have received Jesus and are now being disciplined.
