

out with "that's exactly what happened with Abraham and his son." Adam left, but Caleb stayed to talk longer, still wondering whether the Jewish God really exists.

We have started back at MIT. My first six conversations were with students from Vietnam, China, Russia, Greece, Mexico, and Holland. Lena, the Vietnamese student who now lives in New York, told me she had never read anything from the Bible. She was very attentive to the gospel message and took a Gospel of John and a Vietnamese tract for her parents.

Diane was blessed by having all four children present for her surprise 70th birthday. I was also blessed with a new aortic valve on November 6th. I was able to be back on campuses by the 17th. Please continue to pray for us as Jacob prayed. Thank you for being part of all the Lord is doing with us.

In God’s Grace,

"Having many things to write to you, I did not wish to do so with paper and ink; but I hope to come to you and speak face to face, that our joy may be full."

Dear Praying Partners,

The methods of communication seem to be endless these days, yet nothing beats the power of communication that is face to face. That is the main purpose of our OAC mission: to proclaim the gospel of Jesus Christ face to face. When Jacob was returning home from Padan Aram after 20 years of separation from his brother Esau, who wanted to kill him, he spent a night alone wrestling with God in prayer over what awaited him and his large family. At daybreak, Jacob, now called Israel by God, said, "For I have seen God face to face and my life is preserved." It is not uncommon these days to see faces light up when the gospel is communicated to them, and the Lord, by the conviction of the Holy Spirit, starts to bring a light of understanding into their hearts. The following pictures and stories give testimonies to this truth

Josh, a student at God's Bible School and College, gave the following testimony.

On Thursday afternoon, I had the privilege of presenting the gospel through a paint presentation at the University of Cincinnati. After I finished presenting, the open air leaders transitioned over to four riddles that led listeners to ask themselves the question, 'Where will they spend eternity?' There was one girl who walked by. You could tell she wanted to stop, but she kept walking. I walked up to her, and we went through the riddles together. We talked for around 10 to 15 minutes. She had tears in her eyes. I could tell God had been working in her long before I came into the picture. At the end of our conversation, I asked her, 'If you were to die right now, would you go to Heaven or Hell?' She said, 'To be honest with you, I would go to Hell.' I said, 'Does that bother you?' She said, 'Yes, it does.' I said, 'Do you want to become a Christian?' She said, 'Yes.' I talked her through how to get saved, and I was able to pray with her. She has already texted me and asked where she should start reading in the Bible. I got her in contact with a Christian lady from back home she can communicate with via phone. Please pray with me that God will continue to work in this person's life!

Elie (see picture) stopped to talk when she saw the "Three Things God Cannot Do" stand at Boston University. She said that she had only been here two months and is still trying to fit in. She said Chinese people try to live the best they can, but she would be willing to read something from the Bible. She took the Gospel of John.

Caleb (see picture) was one of six students who stopped to listen to the gospel at UMass Amherst. Only Adam and Caleb, both Jewish, remained. When I mentioned that Jesus was obedient to His Father and died for our sins, Adam burst OAC staff Rebecca Coates and I talking to students across from Penn State University.

Both these students at Westfield State University were surprised that it was possible to be sure of heaven when they read I John 5:13.

Outside the Roxbury Crossing subway station with Justin. He is a believer and was encouraged by the many Scriptures we looked at. He asked prayer that the Lord would provide for him a godly wife, Proverbs 18:22.

Volunteer Frank Kelly witnessing to a student at Northeastern University.

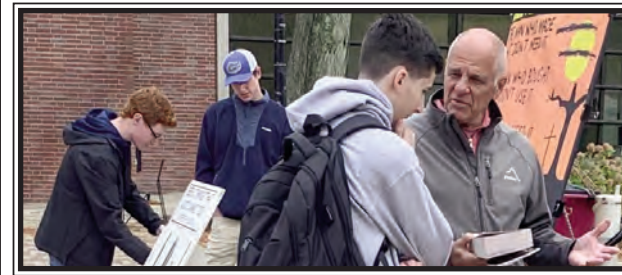

Volunteer Joey Columbo preaching at UMass Lowell; OAC staff Chris McKinley and I had great conversations with students who were listening.

Elie, a Chinese student at Boston University, had only been here for two months.

Six high school students outside the Quincy Transit Station, asking many questions. Two wanted Bibles before they left.

Six students at UMass Amherst were listening to the gospel. Caleb, a Jewish student, was the last to leave, wondering if this was all true.

Volunteer Rick McLellan sharing the gospel with students at Bridgewater State University.

God's Bible School and College student Jack preaching the gospel at The University of Cincinnati.

During our kids meeting in Cincinnati, a child ran back into his apartment and came out with the Bible story we had taught there one year ago! OAC Field Director Brian Harmon is holding it with him.

Sharing the gospel at MIT in Cambridge with our new youth minister at South Shore Baptist Church.

Sharing the gospel with two students at Keene State College. Ashley is a believer and goes to a church in Lawrence, Torre Fuerte Iglesia. She shares the gospel with us whenever we are on campus.
